4849

NCI Library
3 9006 01043067 8

INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS

College of Industrial Relations.
STUDENTS' LIBRARY.

27 MAR 1996

SHORT LOAN
One Week Only

Industrial Relations

A Textbook

MICHAEL P. JACKSON

Third Edition

College of Industrial Relations.
STUDENTS' LIBRARY.

CROOM HELM
London • Sydney • Dover, New Hampshire

© 1977 Michael P. Jackson
Croom Helm Ltd, Provident House, Burrell Row,
Beckenham, Kent BR3 1AT
Croom Helm Australia Pty Ltd, First Floor,
139 King Street, Sydney, NSW 2001, Australia

Reprinted 1978 and 1979
Second edition © 1982
Reprinted 1983 and 1984
Third edition © 1985

British Library Cataloguing in Publication Data

Jackson, Michael P.
Industrial relations : a textbook.——3rd ed.
1. Industrial relations——Great Britain
I. Title
331'.0941 HD8391

ISBN 0-7099-1474-1

Croom Helm, 51 Washington Street, Dover,
New Hampshire 03820, USA

Library of Congress Cataloging in Publication Data

Jackson, Michael Peart.
Industrial relations.
Bibliography: p.
Includes index.
1. Industrial relations—Great Britain. I. Title.
HD8391.J33 1986 331'.0941 85-14991
ISBN 0-7099-1474-1 (pbk.)

Typeset by Leaper & Gard Ltd, Bristol, England
Printed and bound in Great Britain by Biddles Ltd, Guildford and King's Lynn

College of Industrial Relations.
STUDENTS' LIBRARY.

CONTENTS

List of Tables

Acknowledgements

Introduction 1

1. Industrial Relations: Attitudes and Approaches 7

2. The Origins, Growth and Development of Trade Unions 29

3. Trade Unions: Aims, Objectives and Government 62

4. The Industrial Enterprise, Management and Employers' Associations 90

5. Collective Bargaining — An Introduction 114

6. Local and Productivity Bargaining 140

7. Industrial Conflict 168

8. Strikes 191

9. The Role of the State in Industrial Relations 227

10. Conclusions 258

Annotated Bibliography 267

Index 287

TABLES

1. White collar trade union membership in Britain 1948-79 — 39
2. Growth of trade unions in Britain, 1893-1983 — 42
3. Trade union density by country, selected years, 1895-1975 — 48
4. Trade union sponsored Labour Party Members of Parliament — 63
5. Share of US manufacturing assets held by the 100 and 200 largest corporations: 1925-82 — 91
6. World's fifty largest industrial firms — 95
7. Items on which the shop stewards and others negotiated — 143
8. Industrial disputes in the UK — number of, number of workers involved in, and number of working days lost through, industrial disputes, 1911-84 — 194
9. Industrial disputes in the UK 1912-84 by five-yearly periods — 196
10. Industrial disputes in the UK — average number of workers involved in, and average duration of each strike, 1912-84 by five-yearly periods — 197
11. Stoppages of work in the UK known to have been official — 1960-80 — 199
12. International comparison of strike statistics, 1973-83 — 202

13. Percentage distribution of stoppages and working days lost by cause in the UK, 1966-83 206

14. Strike causes before and after 1926 208

15. Knowles' analysis of strike causation: ratio illustrating relative propensity to strike on different issues 209

16. Principal features of an industrial relations system used for comparison 211

17. General pattern of strike propensities 212

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Since the second edition of this book was published, numerous changes have taken place in the field of industrial relations. The most important of these are taken into account in this edition.

Compiling the third edition of a book has meant a considerable amount of detailed work. Much of this has been undertaken by Mrs Dorothy Anderson and Miss Rachel Haigh, and I am grateful for their assistance.

ANNOTATED BIBLIOGRAPHY

Ackroyd, S., 'Economic Rationality and the Relevance of Weberian Sociology to Industrial Relations,' British Journal of Industrial Relations, vol. IX, no. 2 (July 1974), pp. 213-35. Examination of motivation, in terms of individual rationality and the way this reflects social pressures in the work situation.

Acton Society Trust, Size and Morale, Acton Society Trust, London, 1953.

Addison, J.T., Barnett, A.H., 'The Impact of Unions on Productivity', British Journal of Industrial Relations, vol. XX, no. 2 (July 1982), pp. 145-62.

Albeda, W., 'Recent Trends in Collective Bargaining in the Netherlands', International Labour Review, vol. 103 (1971), pp. 247-68. Useful review of trade unions and collective bargaining in the Netherlands. Includes discussion on Dutch incomes policy and its problems.

Alcock, A., History of the International Labour Organization, Macmillan, London, 1971.

Allen, V.L., Militant Trade Unionism, Merlin, London, 1966. Examination of the role of trade unionism in the post-war years centring on their reaction to inflationary conditions.

———, The Sociology of Industrial Relations, Longman, London, 1971. A collection of essays on industrial relations — some re-published — including a substantial section on developing countries.

———, Trade Union Leadership, Longman, London, 1957. A critical examination of the style of union leadership in Britain taking the Transport and General Workers Union and the leadership of Arthur Deakin as a case study.

———, 'Trade Unions: An Analytical Framework,' in Barrett, B., Rhodes, E., Beishon, J. (eds.), pp. 60-6. Analyses the relationship between the development of trade unionism and the social structure.

American Assembly, Challenges to Collective Bargaining, Prentice Hall, Englewood Cliffs, 1967. Collection of essays on collective bargaining in the USA. Includes examination of labour law, wages policy, the role of the public sector and the provision of fringe benefits.

Anderson, P., 'The Limits and Possibilities of Trade Union Action', in Blackburn, R., Cockburn, A. (eds.), pp. 263-80. Stresses the importance of 'consciousness' in trade union activity.

———, Blackburn, R., Towards Socialism, Collins, London, 1965.

Ansoff, H.I. (ed.), Business Strategy, Penguin, Harmondsworth, 1969.

Anthony, P., Crichton, A., Industrial Relations and the Personnel Specialists, Batsford, London, 1969. Introductory text for aspiring personnel managers. Deals briefly with industrial relations and then more substantially with personnel management.

Armstrong, E.G.A., 'The Role of the State', in Barrett, B., Rhodes, E., Beishon, J. (eds.), pp. 109-19. Review of the role of the State in British industrial relations. Includes discussion of the State as an employer, paymaster, buyer, rule maker and manager.

Bain, G.S., Coates, D., Ellis, V., Social Stratification and Trade Unionism, Heinemann, London, 1973. Critical examination of various theories of union growth including that suggesting a link between trade union growth, a person's position in the stratification system and his image of society.

——, Clegg, H.A., 'A Strategy for Industrial Relations Research in Great Britain', British Journal of Industrial Relations., vol. XII, no. 1 (March 1974), pp. 91-113. Reviews origins and development of industrial relations as an academic subject. Argues that more weight ought to be given to the role of theory.

——, Trade Union Growth and Recognition, Royal Commission on Trade Unions and Employers' Associations, Research Paper 6, HMSO, London, 1967.

——, Elsheikh, F., Union Growth and the Business Cycle: An Econometric Analysis, Blackwell, Oxford, 1976.

Baitsell, J.M., Airline Industrial Relations, Pilots and Flight Engineers, Harvard UP, Boston, 1969. Application of systems theory to industrial relations.

Bakke, E.W., 'To Join or Not to Join', in Barrett, B., Rhodes, E., Beishon, J., (eds.), pp. 43-52. Examines the reasons for joining a trade union. Centres on the aims of the worker, including a look at the importance of 'creature comforts', the 'respect of others', etc.

——, Kerr, C. (eds.), Union Management and the Public, Harcourt Brace, New York, 1948.

Baldamus, W., Efficiency and Effort, Tavistock, London, 1961.

——, 'Types of Work and Motivation', British Journal of Sociology, vol. 2 (1951), no. 1, pp. 44-58.

Balfour, C., Industrial Relations in the Common Market, Routledge & Kegan Paul, London, 1972. Brief sketch of industrial relations in Europe. Based on topic rather than country studies.

Banks, J.A., Industrial Participation: Theory and Practice, Liverpool UP, 1963. Industrial participation measured in terms of aspirations towards promotion and election to union office.

——, Marxist Sociology in Action: A Sociological Critique of the Marxist Approach to Industrial Relations, Faber, London, 1970.

——, Trade Unionism, Collier Macmillan, London, 1974. Useful review of sociological theory on trade unionism and collective bargaining. Introduces material from Eastern Europe and developing countries.

Banks R.F., 'Labour Education's Role in Britain', Industrial Relations, February 1966. Examination of Educational facilities provided by British trade unions.

——, 'The Pattern of Collective Bargaining', in Roberts, B.C. (ed.), pp. 92-152. Review of the institutions of British collective bargaining.

Barbash, J., 'The Elements of Industrial Relations', British Journal of Industrial Relations, vol. 2 (1964), no. 1, pp. 66-78. A discussion of the nature of industrial relations as an academic subject.

Barlow, G., 'Some Latent Influences in a Pay Claim: An Examination of a White Collar Dispute', British Journal of Industrial Relations, vol. 7 (1969), no. 2, pp. 200-10.

Barrett, B., Rhodes, E., Beishon, J. (eds.), Industrial Relations in the Wider Society, Collier Macmillan, London, 1975. Collection of essays on industrial relations used for Open University post-experience course. Part I deals with approaches to the study of industrial relations, Part II with parties and processes, Part III with economic influences in industrial relations, Part IV with social and cultural influences and Part V with political and legal influences.

Batstone, E., Boraston, I., Frenkel, S., Shop Stewards in Action, Blackwell, Oxford, 1977.

Beal, E.F., Wickersham, E.D., The Practice of Collective Bargaining, Irwin, Homewood (Illinois), 1967. Systems perspective applied to collective bargaining. Centres on US experience.

Beck, T., The Fine Tubes Strike, Stage 1, London, 1974. Detailed analysis of a three-year strike. It shows how the strikers had to deal not only with opposition from the employers but also from within their own union. Also analyses the effect this had on the strikers.

Behrend, H., 'Absence and Labour Turnover in a Changing Economic Climate', Occupational Psychology, vol. 27 (1953), no. 2, pp. 69-70.

——, 'The Effort Bargain', Industrial and Labour Relations Review, vol. 10 (1957), no. 4, pp. 503-15.

Bell, D., The End of Ideology, Collier, New York, 1961. Discusses alienation, attitudes towards work and workers' control.

Bendix, R., 'The Comparative Analysis of Historical Change', in Burns, T., Saul, S.B. (eds.), Social Theory and Economic Change (Tavistock, London, 1965), pp. 67-86.

——, Work and Authority in Industry: Ideologies of Management in the course of Industrialization, Harper & Row, New York, 1963. Examination of ideologies of management in four different countries (USA, Russia, England, East Germany).

Benyon, H., Blackburn, R.M., Perceptions of Work, Cambridge UP, London, 1972. Case study of workers' attitudes towards work situation. Shows how different people interpret the same situation in different ways and assesses the source of these interpretations.

——, Working for Ford, EP Publishing, Wakefield, 1975. Problems of working in the automobile industry often using the employees' own words.

Berle, A.A., Means, G.C., The Modern Corporation and Private Property, Macmillan, New York, 1932. Classic discussion putting forward the division between ownership and management thesis.

Blackburn, R., Cockburn, A. (eds.), The Incompatibles, Penguin, Harmondsworth, 1967. Collection of essays critical of current industrial relations in Britain. Subtitled, 'Trade Union Militancy and the Consensus'.

Blackburn, R.M., Union Character and Social Class: A Study of White Collar Unionism, Batsford, London, 1967. Argues that we should examine the 'unionateness' of white collar unions.

——, Prandy, K., 'White-Collar Unionization: a Conceptual Framework', British Journal of Sociology, vol. 16 (1965), pp. 111-22.

Blanchflower, D., 'Union Relative Wage Effects: A Cross Section Analysis using Establishment Data', British Journal of Industrial Relations, vol. XXII, no. 3 (November, 1984), pp. 311-32.

Blanpain, R., 'Recent Trends in Collective Bargaining in Belgium', International Labour Review, vol. 104 (1971), pp. 111-30. Review of developments in collective bargaining in Belgium centring on the increasing use of 'social programming' through which far more comprehensive agreements (including social peace and union security clauses) have been negotiated.

Blauner, R., Alienation and Freedom, Chicago UP, 1964. Examination of the relationship between technology and alienation. Essentially optimistic conclusion.

Blumberg, P., Industrial Democracy: the Sociology of Participation, Constable, London, 1968. Attacks Clegg's thesis on industrial democracy. Argues that Clegg wrongly assumed an analogy between state and industrial democracy.

Bone, G., 'The Structure of Industry', British Economic Survey, vol. 5, no. 1 (Autumn 1975), pp. 5-8. Review of recent developments in British Industry. Section A deals with industrial concentration, section B with multinationals.

Boraston, I., Clegg, H.A., Rimmer, M., Workplace and Union, Heinemann, London, 1975.

Bowey, A.M., 'Themes in Industrial Sociology', Industrial Relations Journal, vol.

6, no. 2 (1975), pp. 57-63. Extended review of essays in Child's book, Man and Organisation.

Boyle, S.E., Industrial Organisation, Holt, Rinehart & Winston, New York, 1972. Contains useful information on the business enterprise in USA.

Brentano, L., On the History and Development of Guilds and the Origins of Trade Unions, Truebener, London, 1870. Classic contribution to the debate on the origins of trade unions in Britain. Argues that origins need to be traced back to craft guilds.

Brown, E.C., Soviet Trade Unions and Labor Relations, Harvard UP, Cambridge (Mass.), 1966. One of the few useful examinations of trade unions in the USSR.

Brown, R.K., Brennen, P., Cousins, J.M., Samphier, M.L., 'The Contours of Solidarity', British Journal of Industrial Relations, vol. 10, no. 1 (1972), pp. 12-41. Examination of shipbuilding workers stressing the variety of groups to which a worker belongs.

———, 'Sources of Objectives in Work and Employment' in Child, J. (ed.), pp. 17-38. A criticism of Goldthorpe's thesis on orientations to work. Argues that orientations to work should be seen both as determinants of and determined by work experience.

Brown, W.A. (ed.), The Changing Contours of British Industrial Relations: A Survey of Manufacturing Industry, Blackwell, Oxford, 1981.

Brown, W., Ebsworth, R., Terry, M., 'Factors Shaping Shop Steward Organisation in Britain', British Journal of Industrial Relations, vol. XVI, no. 2 (1978), pp. 139-59. Presents results of a large scale survey of shop steward organisation. Not intended as a representative sample of British industry but gives useful general pointers.

Brown, W.A., Piecework Abandoned, Heinemann, London, 1962. Shows the problems associated with the use of piecework and examines the substitutes available.

Buchanan, R., 'Mergers in British Trade Unions 1949-79', Industrial Relations Journal, vol. 12, no. 3 (May/June 1981), pp. 40-50.

Bulger, J., 'The New Oxford Group', New Society, 15 February 1968, pp. 221-2. Short commentary on the work of one of the most influential schools in British industrial relations.

Burnham, J., The Managerial Revolution, Day, New York, 1941. Argues that managers and managerial skills will become increasingly important in the future.

Burns, T. (ed.), Industrial Man, Penguin, Harmondsworth, 1969. Useful collection of well-known essays on industrial sociology.

Cameron, G.C., Eldridge, J.E.T., 'Unofficial Strikes', in Eldridge, J.E.T., Industrial Disputes, pp. 68-90. Shows the problems of defining and discussing unofficial strikes. Suggests distinction between unofficial and quasi-unofficial strikes.

Chamberlain, N.W., Kuhn, J.W., Collective Bargaining, McGraw Hill, New York, 1965. Review of the theory and practice of collective bargaining in the USA including an analysis of the development of 'co-operative' bargaining.

Child, J. (ed.), The Business Enterprise in Modern Industrial Society, Collier Macmillan, London, 1969.

———, 'Organization: A Choice of Man', ibid., pp. 234-57. Criticism of the 'contingency view' of organisations.

Chinoy, E., Automobile Workers and the American Dream, Doubleday, New York, 1955. Examination of the attitudes of the automobile worker and the way they are adapted to traditional American values.

Clack, G., Industrial Relations in a British Car Factory, Cambridge UP, London, 1967.

Clark, D.G., The Industrial Manager — His Background and Career Pattern, Business Publications, London, 1966.

Clarke, R.O., Fatchett, D.J., Roberts, B.C., Workers' Participation in Management, Heinemann, London, 1972. Review of participation schemes in Britain. Argues that participation can be valuable as a way of increasing efficiency.

Clegg, H.A., General Union, Blackwell, Oxford, 1954. Case Study of the development of one of Britain's major unions.

———, Fox, A., Thompson, A.F., A History of British Trade Unions since 1889, Clarendon Press, Oxford, 1964.

———, How to Run an Incomes Policy, Heinemann, London, 1971.

———, Industrial Democracy and Nationalisation, Blackwell, Oxford, 1951.

———, A New Approach to Industrial Democracy, Blackwell, Oxford, 1960. Asserts that trade union independence is an essential prerequisite for industrial democracy. Criticised by Blumberg.

———, 'Pluralism in Industrial Relations', British Journal of Industrial Relations, vol. XIII, no. 3 (November 1975), pp. 309-16. Spirited defence of pluralism. Claims that many criticisms are based on an inadequate understanding of the thesis.

———, The System of Industrial Relations in Britain, Blackwell, Oxford, 1970. Basic textbook on industrial relations in Britain. A wealth of detail.

———, Killick, A.J., Adams, R., Trade Union Officers, Blackwell, Oxford, 1961. Survey of trade union officers in Britain showing their background, attitudes, etc.

Cliff, T., The Employers' Offensive, Pluto Press, London, 1970.

Coates, K. (ed.), Can the Workers Run Industry, Sphere, London, 1968. Collection of readings from the Workers' Control school.

———, Topham, T., The New Unionism, Peter Owen, London, 1972.

———, Topham, T., Workers Control, Panther, London, 1970. Useful exposition by two leading members of the British Workers' Control movement.

Cole, G.D.H., Attempts at General Union: a Study in British Trade Union History, 1818-1834, Macmillan, London, 1953.

———, A Century of Co-operation, Co-operative Union, Manchester, 1944.

Cole, J., 'Bullock: Before the Battle Begins', Observer, 23 January 1977. p. 10.

Commission on Industrial Relations, Facilities Afforded to Shop Stewards, HMSO, London, 1971, Cmnd 4668. Follow up from Donovan Report.

———, Worker Participation and Collective Bargaining in Europe, HMSO, London, 1974. Country by country survey of works councils in Europe. Includes useful up-to-date information on European trade unions and collective bargaining.

———, Employers' Organisations and Industrial Relations, HMSO, London, 1972. Follows up on some aspects of the research on employers' associations undertaken for the Donovan Commission.

Conservative Party, Fair Deal at Work, Conservative Central Office, London, 1968. Policy document that inspired the Industrial Relations Act.

Corina, J., 'A Workable Incomes Policy for Britain', in Barrett, B., Rhodes, E., Beishon, J. (eds.), pp. 414-33. Examines the way incomes policies have been used in Britain and suggests reforms.

Coser, L., The Functions of Social Conflict, Routledge & Kegan Paul, London, 1956. Uses the work of Simmel to show that conflict can be functional. Important, frequently quoted text.

Crosland, A., The Future of Socialism, Cape, London, 1956. British politician's assessment of the role of Socialism in Western capitalist society. Takes the view