NCI Dockland Campus
the future of education here and now

National College of Ireland, is a fast-growing, dynamic institution, responsive to the needs of learners - coming from schools, the community and the business sector.

NCI's ethos is to create an environment that nurtures learning and develops people of all ages and from all backgrounds and walks of life.

NCI is unique in terms of our mission, our focus and our students.

National College of Ireland, Docklands Campus is our exciting development project in the heart of Dublin's financial district. The College will be located on the NCI Docklands Campus, off Mayor Square on a site provided by the Dublin Docklands Development Authority. The Campus will also include a Research Centre and Student Residences.

Announcing the £7 million grant for the campus in January 2000, the then Minister for Education and Science, Michael Martin, TD, paid tribute to NCI staff for their commitment to excellence and high achievement. He said:

"The specific emphasis that the NCI places, and indeed has always placed, on lifelong learning is particularly acknowledged by my Department. The information society moves at an increasingly dynamic pace, necessitating education through life. However, schedules do not always permit attendance at conventional courses on campus. The off-campus programmes offered by the NCI coupled with the variety and choice of part-time day and evening courses, give educational opportunity to people from every age group and background and from all types of organisations".
